What is Piano Alive?

Piano Alive is a holistically-graded music method for all ages to progress through, within a group setting. Based off practical theory, it enables pianists to love playing both on the page and off the page, and know the why and the how behind it. Younger ages learn through color and games, older ages learn through musical "math" and quizzes, and everyone learns through real-world creative collaboration and songs that don't bore learners or listeners.

Piano Alive connects students with a range of learning styles to music as a whole, with piano as the tool to express themselves and experience excellence in technique, application of amazing theory that matters, and the joy of group playing.

This refreshing method has been developed over the past several years by full time instructor and pianist Danika Starrhart. The results are proven to provide an exceptional foundation and creative springboard in piano -- the kind of method and pedagogy we wished we would've had in past generations!

Our track record shows... 95% of students who take a trial class sign up for one or more seasons. 80% of students who have complete a Piano Alive season are still studying/playing piano today. Long-term Piano Alive students transition seamlessly into learning whatever classical pieces they desire, writing songs and improvising intelligently, and playing in groups with confidence.

Be assured it is normal to spend a year or more in any one level (but also fine, on some exceptions, if the student is able to move forward more quickly). Every class week is a new adventure you'll never tire of.

All review is not redundant, but is covered in a way that provides new perspective on ever-present foundational skills.

Concept Groups

(see following pages)

Concept Groups are a basic framework to attempt linear measurement on what is naturally a holistic process of absorption that strengthens by time and use. Different students will master different concepts on different weeks at their own development pace. Class groups are small enough where each student's progress is noticed, and personalized tips and challenges are able to be provided.

You and/or your teacher will check every area you are confident in to help determine your Piano Alive placement! Any unchecked concepts are what you can expect to learn within each level. You will never regret having more reinforcement, strengthening, and ear training at whatever level you enter into.

Remember to always be bold to ask about any concept you're curious about, even if it's before or after your current concept group placement.
